

I had the pleasure of taking six hours of behind-the-wheel driving lessons with Mr. Ron Aoki, and I can definitely say I owe the passing of my license test to him. Based on my opinion and friends who have also had other instructors prior, Mr. Aoki's experience and knowledge of driving and of the road tests surpasses all other driving instructors. From the years of experience teaching many people of diverse learning techniques/abilities, he has developed a successful method of teaching that is suitable to each individual. He was able to assess my driving and immediately know what the problems were and how to correct them. Also, because he talks to several license examiners at the different DMV's, he knows exactly what they look for depending on the location of your road test.

Not only is Mr. Aoki a very experienced, knowledgeable driving instructor, but he genuinely cares about his students and possesses an exceptional characteristic of patience. It is this passion to help, regardless of how long it takes, that sets him apart from the others. One day after I apologized for not being a coordinated person, he told me not to apologize because he believes everyone can learn coordination with practice; coordination is not an innate ability. His words of faith and encouragement gave me confidence that I could and would be able to pass. No matter what the person's coordination level is, no matter how many times they have failed the road test, no matter how many driving instructors they've consulted with no results, and no matter what the circumstance, Mr. Aoki is more than willing, if not grateful, to teach them.

I highly recommend everyone to take driving lessons with Mr. Aoki. I was more than satisfied with my behind-the-wheel driving lessons with him, and I guarantee you will be too.
